When Hagele does something it's "legal". When someone else does the exact same thing it's "illegal". Presumably, if Hagele were to send in forged complaints to Google pretending to be a web master of a site he dislikes, requesting that certain sites be unindexed, that would be "legal", but if someone else were to do it, that would be "illegal".

Hagele employs a double-standard. For more information about Glenn Hagele, visit <http://www.lasikflap.com/crsqa/>
